The Creative Chateau

If beauty is in the eye of the beholder there is no better place for an eye-ful than the Creative Chateau in Ashland. The big barn, part of a scenic farm built in the 1800's, houses the work of local artisans and is owned by Terri Meyer. Terri opened her studio in 1999 and moved to the current site in 2002.

"The Creative Chateau is a working artist's studio and gallery dedicated to showing and selling the work of local artists. We have nothing imported, no mass produced, cookie cutter work. We are always looking for new artists who want to sell their work," says Terri.

Walk through the Chateau and you will find decorative items for the home, fine arts, wearable art and pottery. Handcrafted jewelry sparkles at you from a case while beautifully framed artwork, paintings and photographs light up the walls. Color, texture, talent surrounds you.

Terri Meyer paints and sculpts, makes jewelry and even her own line of natural bath products. She creates decorative art, does faux finishes and murals and custom framing. Her line of nostalgia clocks has been extremely popular with customers looking for a personalized item for the home or office. Defining her talents over a lifetime, she has read extensively and taken many classes from accomplished artists to hone her skills. Today she lectures, does seminars and teaches in her studio. One popular monthly event is "Diva Night" when clients come to the studio for a girls night out to learn a different craft or art form in a wine and cheese setting. To be added to the mailing list for classes and other events visit the website at CreativeChateau.com and register for the newsletter or become a friend of the Creative Chateau on Facebook. The studio is located at 1432 County Road 1575, one block from the Goasis, in Ashland.

"The Creative Chateau promotes local talent and personalized service. Enthusiasm and creativity are our passion," says Terri Meyer.
